Healing Secrets of "Kairali"

'5000 Years ago, the sacred Saints transcribed their knowledge of medicine i.e. Ayurveda as the science of healing. The term "Ayur" means "Life" and "Veda" means science or knowledge. Ayurveda is the science of life that offers every human being means to live their life to their full potential.

Derivation of the Word Ayurveda

"Ayusho veda: Ayurveda"

Ayu means Life
Veda means Knowledge

In essence, Ayurveda means
'The Knowledge' or 'Science of Life'

Understanding Ayurveda in Brief

Famous for its soothing massages and organic therapies, Ayurveda remains an integral part of the Indian philosophy of holistic living and plays a significant role in an individual's healthy existence even today. Based on the principles of Atharvaveda, Ayurveda believes in complete restoration of health and hence treats every ailment or illness through its root cause along with the immediate relief in the symptoms of the disease. According to Ayurveda, Health is termed as the balanced state of Doshas (3 Bio-energies: Vata, Pitta, Kapha), Agni (13 Digestive fires), Dhatu (7 Bodily tissues), Mala (Major & Minor excretory products) along with the Happy State of Soul, Senses and Mind. The idea behind this holistic approach is two-fold: one to treat the body; and two, to restore the harmony between mind, body and spirit. It is this approach that makes Ayurveda an effective and complete wellness science.

The Origin of Ayurveda

The exact origin of Ayurveda although remains mired in folktales and mythology, it is believed that Lord Brahma who is supposed to be the creator of earth and considered the most knowledgeable person of the universe initially passed on this knowledge to his successor and later on it was brought on earth for the healthy and happy existence of the mankind. However, Ayurveda dates back to 5000 BCE (approx.) in the recorded form as main medical texts namely "Sushruta Samhita, Charaka Samhita, Ashtanga Hrudaya together known as Brihatrayee (Big Triads of Ayurveda) and Sharangdhara Samhita, Bhavprakash, Madhav Nidan known as Laghutrayee (Small Triads of Ayurveda)". Over the period of time these books have been translated into many languages for the propogation of Ayurveda worldwide.

8 Branches of Ayurveda

1. Kaya Chikitsa (General medicine) : This is a branch of medicine which can be compared to the General Medicine of Modern Science. 'Kaya' stands for body (Sharira). This branch deals with all the bodily diseases and disorders (Sarvanga Vyadhis). It includes all systems like Respiratory system, Digestive System, Central Nervous System, etc. For instance, Asthama, Bronchitis, Indigestion, Fever, Haemoroids, Rheumatoid pains etc.
2. Bala Chikitsa (Pediatrics): This branch is also known as Koumarbhrutya and in modern language is known as pediatrics. Deals with "bharana of kumara", which deals with nourishment, support and maintenance of children.
3. Graha Chikitsa (Psychiatry): It represents Ayurvedic Psychology and deals with treatment of psychosomatic diseases like insanity, epilepsy etc. Manas roga in modern age are known as psychiatric diseases and treated with Ayurvedic principles through a combination of diet, yoga therapy, meditation and Mantra Chikitsa or Daivavyapasraya Chikitsa (a form of chanting).
4. Salakya Chikitsa (Ophthalmology & ENT): It deals with the diseases of the ear, nose and throat. Also known as Nimitantra, it is further classified into Nethrachikitsa (Ophthalmology), Karnachikitsa (Otology), Nasachikitsa (Rhinology), Mukharogachikita (Oral hygiene, Dentistry and Laryngology), and Shirorogachikitsa (Cranial Diseases). Acharaya Nimi is considered as father of Shalakya Tantra.

5. Salya Chikitsa (Surgery): It deals with the extraction of foreign bodies (Shalya), diseases/ disorders that require surgical/para surgical management. It remains reserved for those classes of diseases which cannot be cured with medicines. Sushruta is known as father of surgery and majority of the surgical procedures done in modern medicine are modifications of ancient procedures.
6. Visha Chikitsa (Toxicology): Also known as Agada tantra, it deals with natural and artificial toxic substances and poisons in detail along with their antidotes, the signs and symptoms and also the management of poisoning resulting from the bites of animals like snakes, insects, spiders and rodents.
7. Jara Chikitsa (Geriatrics): Rasayana drugs are better known as tonics or science of rejuvenation. Directly or indirectly they have antioxidant, anti-ageing and anti-stress effect. Normally, Rasayana is a substance used for promoting Rasa and allied tissues (Saptdhatu of Ayurveda). The Rasayana discipline is integral part of Ashtang Ayurveda.
8. Vrishya Chikitsa (Infertility & sexual disorder): It deals with diseases and treatments of male and female reproductive tissues and hormones, it also includes study of aphrodisiacs, and others related to sexual disorders, male and female reproductive systems, infertility, etc.

Diagnosis in Ayurveda

While modern science treats the causative factors or symptoms, Ayurveda's approach to treating any disease or illness is through the basic energy cycles called doshas and their equilibrium. The reason for such mental-physical analysis is the belief that any condition/disease is the manifestation of the imbalance between any of these energy cycles, caused due to various external factors and internal factors.

Ayurveda believes that an individual's physical and mental functioning is controlled by three doshas, namely, Vata, Pitta, and Kapha. These doshas are a combination of the five important live giving elements called Ether, Air, Fire, Water and Earth. When in sync, an individual has a calm, pleasant existence, but any imbalance can cause a variety of health issues and diseases. Such imbalance can also be caused by certain external factors like seasonal changes (common cold and fever), sedentary lifestyle (obesity, diabetes, high blood pressure) and those caused because of ageing or hormonal imbalance.

When in harmony, these doshas can lead to a nirvana of the Atma (soul), Indriya (sense organs) and Manas (mind).

Dosha, Dhatu & Mala

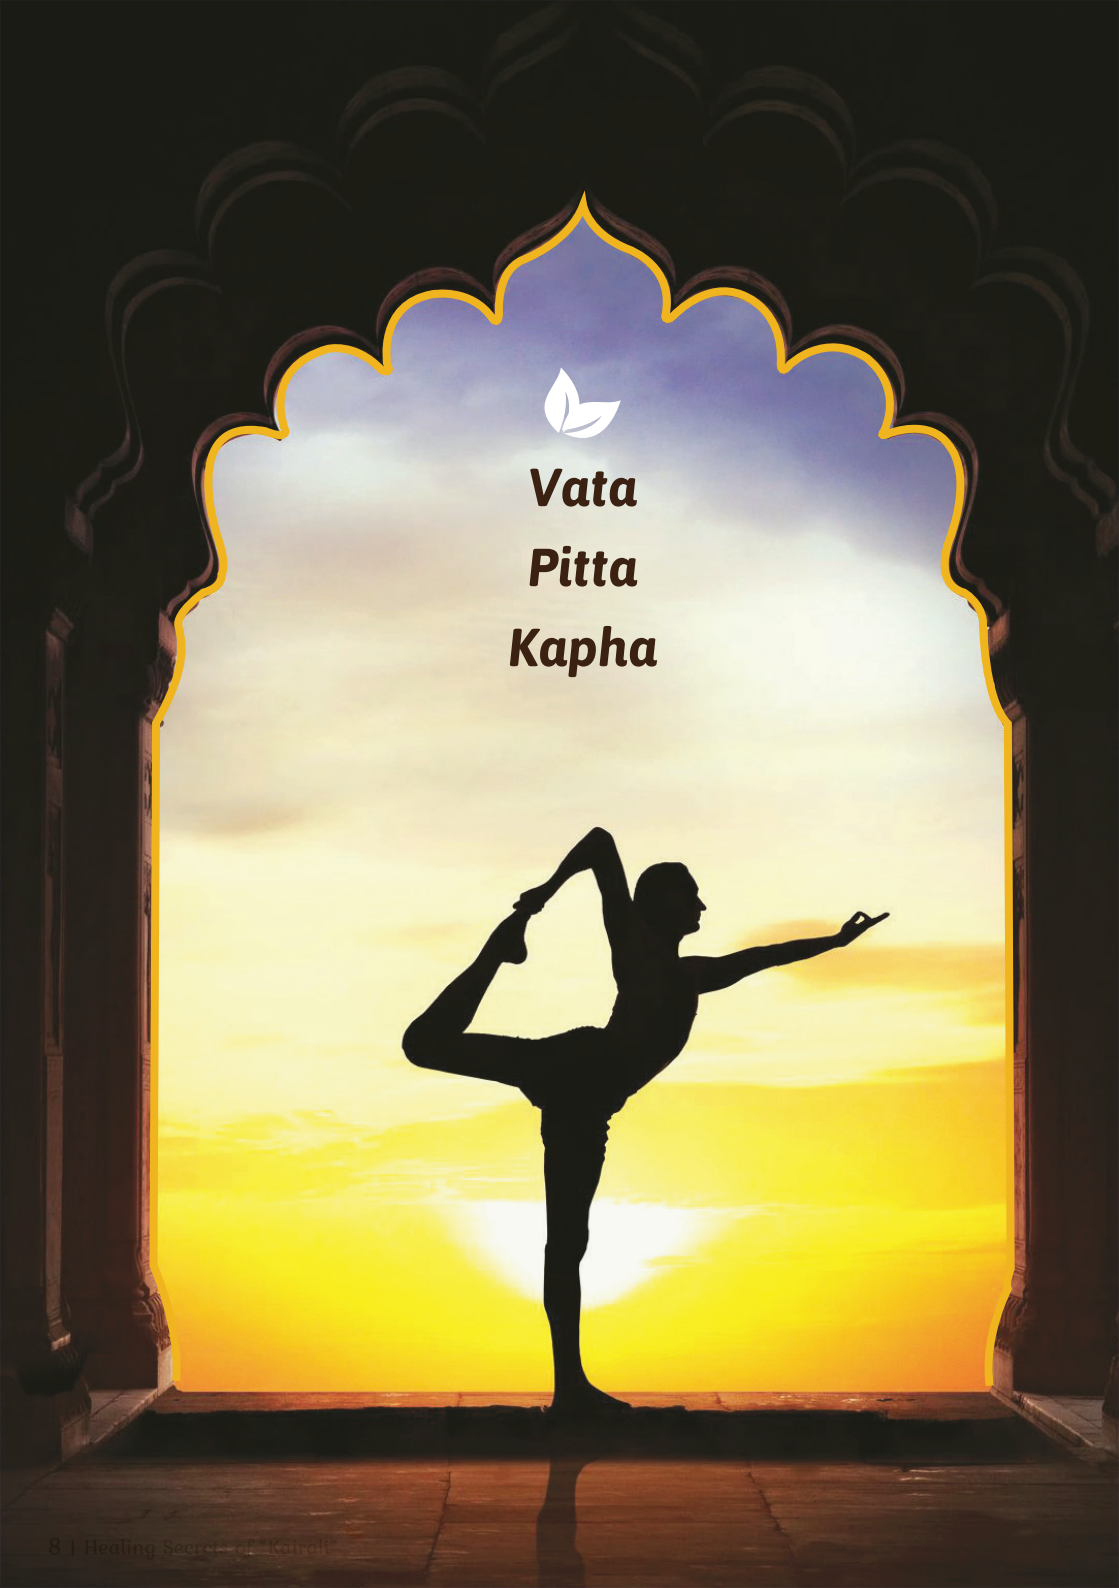

"Doshadhatu Mala Moolam Hi Sareeram"

According to Ayurveda, the human body is made of 3 Doshas, 7 Dhatus, and 3 Malas.

Dosha (pronounced doe-sha) is essentially an energy source that regulates our physical and psychological process enabling us to function properly. Doshas are present in the simplest cellular organism to the most complex biological functionality like humans and animals. Any form of imbalance in this equilibrium manifests itself as an ailment and disease.

A Dhatu (prounounced as dhaa-tu) function in the body is to give the human body its basic structure. When in harmony, Dhatu helps in the growth and survival of a human body.

Mala (pronounced ma-lav) are the vestigial products that the body releases. It is this element that ensures that the toxic levels in the body are always under a certain level.

Vata
Pitta
Kapha

Tridosha

These are the three factors that control the entire pathophysiology of the body or in other words, the way you (and your body) reacts and responds to situations.

Vata

Functions of Vata is to help body function in an effective way and includes not only physical process but that of mind too.

Signs of imbalanced Vata

An increased Vata shows itself as discoloration of the skin, weak abdomen, pain, insomnia among others, a slowed-down Vata, on the other hand, leads to decrease in physical activity, slow reflexes.

Pitta

Functions of Pitta is to aid digestion, regulate body temperature, better eye-sight, appetite, intellect & good skin, to name a few.

Signs of imbalanced Pitta

An increased Pitta showcases itself as excessive hunger, thirst, burning sensation and loss of sleep, while a dormant Pitta can lead to indigestion, cold extremities and dull skin.

Kapha

Functions of Kapha aids in maintaining stability, lubrication and firmness of the joints in the body.

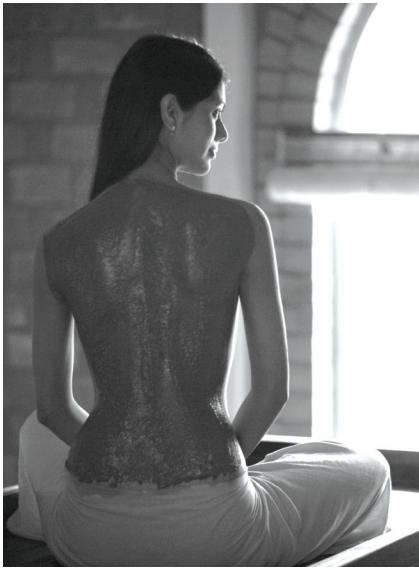

Signs of imbalanced Kapha

An increase in Kapha shows itself as indigestion, heaviness of the body, excessive sleep and cough, a reduced Kapha, on the other hand, leads to giddiness, palpitation, dryness of skin and laxity of the joints.

Prakruti

Ayurveda defines Prakruti (pronounced as pra-kar-ti) as the representation of the genetic, physical and mental constitution of a person. In simple words, it is the sum total of little elements that gives a person, his or her own unique character.

Formed at the time of the union between sperm and ovum inside the uterus, it not only defines the behavior of an individual, but also his/her physical nature - and how susceptible will she or he be to diseases and (mental) conditions like anger, fear, suspicious among others. A person with Vata Prakruti, for instance, is prone to be affected with arthritis, diagnosing his disease is essential to assess his Prakruti.

The Forms of Prakruti

Ayurveda defines an individual's Prakruti as a combination of two or more "Doshas", and has classified them under the following broad categories:

1. Vata Prakruti
2. Pitta Prakruti
3. Kapha Prakruti
4. Vata-Pitta Prakruti
5. Kapha-Pitta Prakruti
6. Vata-Kapha Prakruti
7. Tridosha Prakruti

Note: It has been observed that people usually fit into one of the seven categories of Prakruti.

Characteristics of Vata Prakruti

Physical Attributes – Individuals with this dosha Prakruti are of lean built with brittle nails, thin and dry hair, dry skin, have a weak voice with a possibility of stammering, irregular appetite, troubled bowl movement and intolerance to cold and dry climate.

Mental Attributes – They suffer from disturbed sleep and are often emotional and impressionable.

Characteristics of Pitta Prakruti

Physical Attributes – Individuals with this Dosha Prakruti often are of moderate built, soft pink nails, grey and thin hair, smooth skin, boast of a commanding and sharp voice, have a good appetite, but are intolerance to hot climate and suffer from loose bowel movements.

Mental Attributes – They are usually impatient, sleep moderately, have a sharp and clear memory, argumentative, aggressive and are of stable beliefs.

Characteristics of Kapha Prakruti

Physical Attributes – Individuals with this Dosha Prakruti are well built with a tendency to put on weight, have thick and white nails, dark strong hair, oily skin, sweet and resonating voice, normal bowel movements, but suffer from a poor appetite and are intolerance to cold and damp climate.

Mental – They have a good temper, easy going, love sleeping, are soft spoken with a good memory, calm with a strong conviction but lazy.

Ordinarily today, it is rare to find a person with single Dosha Prakruti like Vata Prakruti. However, a majority of people we meet on a daily basis are a combination of two Doshas and often are called Dwidoshaja Prakruti (dual energy source characteristics) like Vata-Pitta Prakruti and Pitta-Kapha Prakruti.

Treatment in Ayurveda

In Ayurveda, every condition has a three-way treatment approach, which is a combination of Swastha chikitsa, Shamana Chikitsa, Shodana Chikitsa.

Swastha Chikitsa

This set of treatments is especially devised for a healthy person and is focused at enhancing the immunity and metabolism of a person through a combination of therapies, food and exercise. These therapies work towards improving the vigor and vitality of an individual. Rasayana and Vajikarana Chikitsa are the two categories under which these treatments are administered.

Shamana Chikitsa

Slightly more intense than the Swastha Chikitsa, this set of treatments is devised to “calm down” a disease/condition, and usually given where a disease manifests itself with a “burning,” “aching” symptom. Usually diseases that are mild in nature come under the purview of the Shamana Chikitsa.

Shamana Chikitsa is administered through oral therapies like tablets and Kashayams, and is given in two stages:

First, the Hetu Vipareetam. The therapies under this segment address the immediate causes. Like in case of an injury, the first-step is to stop the blood flow and clean the area off any residual sediment that can result in puss formation.

The second, more important part of the treatment is called Vyadhi Vipareetam. The treatment done under this segment involves a holistic, step-by-step curative process against the disease and its effects. This treatment mostly begins and ends with a complete dosha analysis.

Shodana Chikitsa

Considered to be a “complete treatment” in itself, in Shodana Chikitsa, both the disease and its causative factors are worked on. The focus of this treatment is to not only to eliminate the root cause of the disease/condition, but also drastically reduce the chance of its recurrence through strengthening the Doshas, Dhatu and Mala in the body.

An excellent example of Shodana Chikitsa is Panchakarma. A combination of five different cleansing therapies, Panchkarma works to not only detoxify the body, but also restores the different faculties of the body to health for effective functionality.

Kairali's Special Panchakarma

Panchakarma is amongst the oldest treatments in Ayurveda. First mentioned in the Chakra Samhita, Panchkarma is complete cleansing of the body using specially prepared herbal oils that helps in restoring youth – not only of the appearance, but that of the organs as well. This is done through a combination of five natural methods of eliminating toxins from the body and balancing the three Doshas: Vata, Pitta, and Kapha.

The treatment begins with:

Vamanam (Emesis Therapy): This therapy detoxifies the Kapha, which often gets clogged with excessive mucus due to recurring bronchitis attacks like cold and cough. In Vamanam, the therapist uses medicated oil to clean the energy cycles. This treatment is also effective in treating Kapha-related ailments like psoriasis.

Virechanam (Purgation): This therapy is aimed at cleaning the intestines by administering natural laxatives. Virechanam is effective in treating all Pitta-related conditions and diseases.

Aasthaapana / Niruham (Decoctionenema): Administered in form of Kashayavasti, Assthaapana treats all Vata-related diseases, especially the colon region. It is also effective in treating backaches, sciatica, and all forms of joint pains.

Anuvaasan (Oil Enema): Anuvaasan is used for treating all Vata-related diseases, such as paralysis, arthritis, urinary and reproductive disorders. This therapy is also recommended for patients suffering from constipation and obesity as well.

Nasyam (Nasal Medication): This therapy is used to clear excess mucus accumulated in the sinus, throat, nose and forehead region of the body by administering a certain dosage of oil through the nostrils. Hot oil massage to make one perspire is an integral part of the therapy. This treatment is recommended for those suffering with sinusitis, migraine, chronic cold, chest congestion, hemiplegia and facial paralysis.

A Primer of Ayurvedic Therapies

ABHYANGAM

Loosely explained as a regular oil massage, Abhyangam is akin to the massage given to babies to strengthen their bones and joints, regulate the flow of blood, and also build the immunity of the body to fight against seasonal changes. In fact, it is recommended as the first step to any treatment, thanks to its ability to retune the energy cycles.

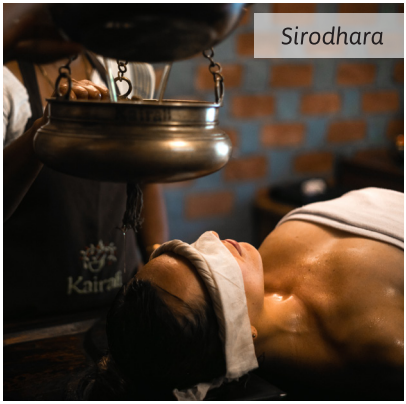

To administer the treatment, an individual is first seated on the Droni (a wooden bed specially made for the therapy) where two trained masseurs work in-sync applying medicated herbal oil on the head and then the rest of the body, while massaging it gently into the skin. It is a relaxing massage.

Abhyangam

The benefit of taking Abhyangam is that it improves blood circulation, longevity, better sleep and vitality. Those who take the treatment regularly have a glowing skin.

SIRODHARA

Sirodhara

Sirodhara is an ancient therapy that uses medicated herbal oil and the study of the neuro-functioning of the body to treat headaches, sinus issues and even stress.

The therapy begins with the individual lying down, face up, on a wooden bed, with hands on both the side. A specially-designed apparatus filled with the medicated oil placed on top of the head is used to pour oil in slow oscillation movement, while the masseur gently massages the different pressure points in the body to de-stress. After the prescribed duration is over the head is then dried with a towel.

Sirodhara is known to promote rejuvenation and revitalization of the mind and body, while reversing the effects of ageing. It is also effective in easing mental stress and strain.

TAKRADHARA

Although the procedure of administering Takradhara is similar to Sirodhara, the treatment uses buttermilk poured through a specially-designed apparatus over a single region of the body to treat an illness.

This therapy has proven effective for those suffering from memory loss, disease of the scalp and skin disorders like psoriasis, anxiety, stress and mental disorders.

DHANYAMALA DHARA

Dhanyamala Dhara is a full-body therapy and using fermented medicated solutions.

In Dhanyamala Dhara, a fermented solution is poured through a special apparatus in a continuous stream through the body, with specialists gently massaging it into the skin using circular hand motion. It is effective in treating obesity, and relieving aches and pains.

PIZHICHIL

Pizhichil

One of Kairali Healing Village's signature anti-ageing/rejuvenating therapies, Pizhichil is effective in healing rheumatic diseases, BP, pain in the joints and diabetes.In Pizhichil, warm, medicated oil is poured over the body using a fine piece of linen to treat diseases. This oil is simultaneously massaged onto the body using slow, circular motion applied with a light pressure.

KIZHI

Used over the past 5,000 years in Ayurvedic Therapies, Kizhi (pronounced khiri) is the name for little bundles of medicated herbs, oils, powders. These poultices are used with various pressures to treat a variety of conditions/diseases. Based on the herbs/oil used, there are various forms of kizhi treatments. Some of our popular therapies at our centre are:

ELAKIZHI (PATRASWEDAM)

Elakizhi

In Elakizhi, herbal poultices (bundles) are prepared with various herbs and medicated powders. These poultices are warmed in medicated oils and then used to massage the entire body, neck, shoulders, hands and back. This therapy helps improve blood circulation within the affected area through perspiration. It also works as a deep skin cleanser and toner.

MANJALKIZHI

Though similar to Podikizhi in process, ManjalKizhi uses turmeric mixed with other herbs and oils in the treatment. This therapy is given to reduce inflammation, and to heal arthritic aches and pains.

NARANGAKIZHI

Naranga in Malyalam means lemon. A speciality treatment in Ayurveda, Narangakizhi harvests the pain-relieving properties of lemon to treat diseases like diabetic neuropathy, frozen shoulders, traumatic injuries and various aches and pains. The Kizhi used here has slices of lemons brewed with herbs and medicated oil. These bags are then warmed up and massaged on the body with focus on the affected areas.

PODIKIZHI

Podikizhi

Here the Kizhis are filled with herbal powders, which are warmed and pounded over the body with moderate pressure for certain duration of time. PodiKizhi is recommended for relieving spasm, stiffness of muscles and joints, and beneficial in melting fat and flab around the muscles.

MUTTAKIZHI

Yet another traditional treatment in Ayurveda, MuttaKizhi uses the healing properties of protein in eggs to treat paralysis, muscle wasting or muscle atrophy, facial palsy and frozen shoulders. The treatment uses boiled egg yolks, which are mixed with various herbs and oils and made into Kizhis that are massaged on to the body.

MANALKIZHI

In this therapy, beach sand plays the key role. The sand is first cleaned of all the impurities, dried and then tossed with rock salt over medium heat. Manalkizhi helps heal rheumatic fever, pain, inflammation and swelling, especially of the AmaVata nature.

KADIKIZHI

This therapy uses steamed herbal Kizhi instead of the herbs mixed in oil. Kadikizhi begins with a light massage with medicated oils followed with the steamed Khizi massage. The therapy is recommended for those dealing with weight issues and arthritis.

NAVARAKIZHI

Instead of the usual herbal mixes, this therapy uses a special preparation made of Navara rice that is cooked in cow's milk and then ground with herbal mixture. These Kizhis are then dipped in the same herbal mixture and rubbed all over the body. The final phase of the therapy includes cleansing the body and applying medicated oil in soft, circular motion. NavaraKizhi lends a certain glow to the skin, nourishes the muscles, and is effective in curing various skin and other ailments.

UDWARTHANAM

Udwarthanam is a combination of an exfoilator, massage therapy and a treatment, and is administered using a specially-prepared dry powder to improve blood circulation and treat numbness of the limbs. In Udwarthanam, dry herbal powder is applied as a scrub all over the body. This treatment also exfoliates the skin to give a toned and firm look, and is effective in reducing body fat.

UDGHARSHANAM

The therapy follows the same principles of treatment as in Udwarthanam, but instead of dry herb mixture it uses the wet form of a medicated powder. In Udgharshanam, the wet, scrub-kind mixture is gently massaged through the body, allowed to settle and then removed. This therapy helps in breaking the cellulite in the body, and strengthening the muscles. It is also effective in treating skin conditions like eczema.

SIROVASTI

An important part of Ayurveda science, Sirovasti is the traditional treatment for all nervous problems. In Sirovasti, a specially-designed head gear is placed on the head, into which lukewarm, medicated oil is poured slowly till it covers the entire head. The oil is allowed to stand a specific time. The key to this therapy is maintaining the temperature of the oil at a certain degree for the entire duration of the treatment. Sirovasti is recommended for those suffering from migraine, deafness, ailment affecting cranial nerves, facial paralysis, stress, chronic cold, sinusitis and other neurological diseases.

Urovasti is more focused towards the functioning and health of the heart and the lungs. In Urovasti, the affected region is localized using a herbal paste, into which warm medicated oil is poured and kept for 30 to 40 minutes. This treatment is effective in treating asthma, bronchitis, palpitation, costochondritis, and chest injury if any; and is known to improve cardiac functioning.

JANUVASTI

Developed for the knee region and the various ailments relating to it, Januvasti begins with circling the knee region with a herbal dough. Into this, lukewarm oil is poured slowly till it fills right below the rim of the circle and kept for certain duration of time. Januvasti is effective in treating osteoarthritis and healing knee bone injuries.

Kativasti

GREEVAVASTI

Dedicated to the wellness of the neck and cervical region, in greevavasti the neck area cervical region, in greevavasti localized using a herbal dough/paste. Into this, warm, medicated oil is poured and allowed to stay for a few minutes depending upon the condition/disease being treated, and its level of seriousness. Greevavasti is effective for those with cervical spondylosis, stiffness, spasm of the back and occupational tension build ups.

KATIVASTI

Another form of treatment for the back, Kativasti begins with encircling the region to be treated using a herbal dough, in which warm medicated oil to be poured and allowed to stand for a time span as determined by the doctor depending on the nature of the disease/condition. Kativasti is effective in treating chronic issues like spondylitis, disc prolapse, sciatica and muscular spasms.

NASYAM

Nasyam

Nasyam is one of the many treatments of Ayurveda. Medicated oils, powders etc. is instilled through the nasal route. The upper portion of the body from neck upwards is massaged during this process. The area around the nose, neck, shoulders, palms and feet is rubbed to enable the easy assimilation of the medicine and also helps in cleaning all the minute channels above the neck. Nasyam is beneficial for those suffering from sinusitis, migraine, chronic cold, facial palsy, cervical spondylosis etc.

TALAPOTICHIL

According to Ayurveda, Talapotchil is the most naturally effective therapies to treat diseases that upset the head. The treatment begins with a mandatory head massage with herbal oil. This is followed with a Varti (a special cloth) that is tied around the head and an herbal paste is applied with uniform thickness all over the head. This is kept for 45 minutes, after which the dried paste is removed and the head is wiped clean. Talapotchil is suggested for those suffering hair loss, dandruff, greying, insomnia, low blood pressure (BP) and chronic sinusitis.

Talapotichil

MUKHALEPAM

Mukhalepam, or face pack, is perhaps the oldest, non-invasive, effective, beauty, skin and senses rejuvenation therapy in the book of Ayurveda. Mukhalepam begins with a light massage of the face. This is followed by applying an even layer of Lepam applied on the face and neck area. Two swabs of cotton and slices of cucumber are placed on the eye. The Lepam is left to dry and then washed off with water.

Mukhalepam

NETRADHARA

Netradhara is a treatment devised for cleaning the eyes, and is usually the first level of treatment advised in Ayurveda for any forms of eye conditions. In Netradhara, the eyes are washed with a medicated concoctions or oils for a specific period of time, usually for half an hour. Netradhara is commonly recommended for people suffering from eye fatigue and muscular tension. Of course the treatment also lends brightness to the eyes, while "slowing down" the arrival of crows-feet.

NETRATHARPANAM

A combination of a soothing, eye-relaxing treatment and detox therapy that helps rejuvenate the eyes and its surrounding tissues, Netratharpanam begins with applying a special herbal paste around the eyes. Medicated ghee or concoction is poured, and left to stay for a specified time, depending on the ailment being treated. It helps to treat degenerative eye diseases like myopia, hypermetropia etc. and helps strengthening optic nerves and related tissues.

KAVALAGRAHAM

One of the core therapies in Ayurveda for oral health, Kavalagraham uses oil and other medicated concoctions to cleanse the oral canals through gargling. The therapy is beneficial in fixing loose teeth, curing sensitivity, preventing tooth decay, treating bleeding gums to improving clarity in voice.

GANDOOSHAM

One of the effective, non-invasive treatments for oral care, Gandoosham uses the heat of the mouth to disseminate the medicine and eliminate toxins. In this therapy, oil or medicated decoctions is held in the mouth for certain period of time. The process is almost similar to mouthwash these days, but with larger benefits.

KARNAPOORNAM

Karnapoornam is a single curative-preventive treatment for all forms of audiometric conditions. In Karnapoornam, warm medicated liquids/oil is poured into the external ear canal and retained for a specific period of time, which varies from person-to-person. This treatment is effective in preventing ailments of the ears, and is recommended for those with hearing debility, tinnitus and neurological disorders.

DHOOMPANAM

Dhoom or smoke is an important aspect of treatment in Ayurveda as it helps exhume the impurities and residues of a treatment, and is essential for cleansing the system. Yet another form of detox therapy, Dhoompanam is useful in treating sensory ailments, and is administered by inhaling medicated smoke from a Varti. It forms the last phase of Nasyam.

Dhoompanam is beneficial for those who suffer from shirorogas, sinusitis and conditions related to urdhvajatrugatarogas.

Lepam

THALAM

This therapy uses medicated special powders mixed in medicated oils to treat ENT problems like insomnia, migraine and others. In Thalam, the medicated powder is applied on the vertex for the specific duration, which varies from one person to another and depends on the intensity of the condition.

LEPAM

Lepam or packs is a specially-created concoction to address a specific series of physical, mental and psychological problems. The simplest of therapies in Ayurveda, Lepam involves applying the herbal paste on the affected area and wrapping the region with a muslin cloth. The paste is left to dry before being washed clean. Lepam helps relieve pain (warm/hot pack) and restore the glow (cold pack) too.

MATRAVASTI

The procedure in which, warm medicated oil is given through the anal route, to subside Vata. It also helps in treating conditions like Constipation, Low back pain, etc. This Ayurvedic enema can be done in all ages i.e. from childhood to old age, without any complications.

KASHAYAVASTHI

One among the Panchkarama procedure in which warm medicated decoction is given through the anal route. The medicated decoction is made up of five herbal ingredients; Kashayavasti is indicated in all neurological diseases like hemiplegia, paraplegia, weight loss and certain arthritic conditions as well.

Ayurveda with Kairali

At Kairali, we believe that the basis of good health is when your body, mind, and spirit are in peace, and in perfect harmony with each other.

This faith, in fact, remains the founding principle of all the treatments and medical assistance provided at the Kairali Healing Village – and its various centres. We are guided by the knowledge that has been passed on from generation-to-generation of the Ayurvedic practicing family that owns the Kairali Healing Village. It is the combination of this holistic approach and the collective knowledge that makes our treatments effective and suitable to the present urban lifestyle.

Our secret concoctions and oils come from the understanding that the Kairali family of doctors and therapist have gathered through years of research and practice in Ayurveda. This edge is the reason that at Kairali Healing Village (and centres), we are able to not only treat the immediate symptoms, but also develop practices meant to rejuvenate and detoxify the body, while eliminating morbid and bad doshas. It's our belief that wellness isn't just about the physical health, but a reflection in an individual's emotions and zeal to live life to the fullest.

Kairali's Preventive & Regenerative Therapy

While you are seated on a specially medicated herbal bed called Droni, two therapists will stand on either side, apply herbal oil on your head, and gently rub your head, neck, ear, shoulder, chest and back. The Ayurvedic Healing Village, Palakkad

Sprawled across 65 acres of lush greenery in Palakkad, Kerala, with 30 tastefully designed exclusive villas with modern facilities,
Kairali - The Ayurvedic Healing Village is where Ayurveda is practiced in its pristine form, with traditional Ayurvedic oils and medicines administered by skilled massage therapists.
